

INNOVATION

For 60 years, through outstanding bi-national teamwork, NORAD has proven itself in its roles of watching for, warning of, and defending against evolving threats. As it has throughout its history, NORAD continues to modernize to ensure the defense of North America against all perils in all domains.

Canada and the United States share a unique military relationship within NORAD, the only bi-national military organization in the world, and remain committed its essential function: the defense of North America.

To that end NORAD's stewardship in the Evolution of North American Defense initiative is a comprehensive effort to develop materiel and non-materiel solutions to address emergent and "unknown" future challenges resulting in a secure North America.

Combining the strength and resources of Canada and the United States, NORAD remains committed to detecting and deterring threats to North America as Canadians and Americans work jointly to safeguard our collective defense for years to come.
